Danville, CA March 13, 2009 - The Consumer Electronics Association (CEA®) announced today that Fusion Research has won a 2009 Mark of Excellence Award, presented by CEA's TechHome Division. CEA's Mark of Excellence Awards honored Fusion's Genesis BD for outstanding achievement and innovation in trend setting custom home electronics for Media Servers. Award entries were reviewed by a panel of industry experts and submitted in two categories: Supplier and Systems Integrators.

According to the company's CEO, Joseph Storm "...we are flattered to have won this award especially considering our competition, and the fact that its our first time entering the competition. As we continue to develop our products and improve our offerings, we look forward to expanding our position and reputation in the market."
